

BEGIN INQUIRY IN PLANE CRASH AT UNIONTOWN

Investigators Are Checking Wreckage in Which Eleven Persons Died

HOSTESS SOUNDS APPEAL FOR HELP

Injured, but Stumbles One Mile Through Brush to Telephone

By MARBEN GRAHAM,
Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 8.—The words of a tiny heroine and the twisted dial of a shattered instrument told the tale today of the airline Sun Racer's end—11 dead and three hurt.

At dawn a group of investigators guided up the highest mountain in western Pennsylvania to check over the wreckage of the big TWA transport which plowed through a fog into a rock-strewn woods yesterday.

Eleven burned and broken bodies were taken to a morgue for relatives to claim them. The ship caught fire after the wreck.

Hostess Is Heroine

Petite Nellie Granger, hostess on the California-bound Sun Racer, was the heroine of the disaster. Although injured herself, she stumbled miles through the undergrowth to a forest warden's home.

There she telephoned the news and insisted in going back to remain with the two injured until help came. Hours later she told the story of how the unsuspecting passengers hurried to their deaths.

The dead:
Charles H. Smith, 17, Arnold, Pa. student at Valley Forge Military academy.

D. O. August, 17, Grove City, Pa. Valley Forge student.

Crawford Kelly, 18, McKeesport, Pa. Valley Forge student.

Robert G. Evans, 18, Wayne, Pa. Valley Forge student.

Stanley B. Bayersdorfer, vice president of Hub Department store, Steubenville, O.

Frank Hardman, Jersey City, delegate to the Union Ironworkers convention in St. Louis.

John O'Neill, Jersey City, also a delegate.

G. B. D'Arcy, New York City.

G. W. Haffner, New York City.

Pilot Otto Ferguson, Kansas City.

Co-pilot H. C. Lewis, Kansas City.

The injured:
Hostess Nellie Granger, Dravosburg, Pa., cut on leg and body.

Mrs. Meyer C. Ellenstein, wife of the mayor of Newark, N. Y., critically injured.

C. C. Challinor, Cleveland and New York, both ankles broken.

10 Minutes to Live

Stopped watches on two of the dead convinced Lieut. George Pickering of the highway patrol and Coroner S. A. Baltz that the tragedy occurred at 10:20 a. m. ten minutes earlier.

Pilot, Ferguson, crashed from Newark, N. J., radioed he was flying through thick weather by his instruments and would not land at Pittsburgh.

Jack Frye, president of transcontinental Airways, said in New York, the Sun Racer was flying on a special radio beam but was 50 miles off its course.

Frye said that about the time of the crash another TWA plane, east-bound, was delayed in landing because of interruption of a radio beam for weather reports.

He said without further information he could not say whether a beam interruption could have contributed to the wreck.

SEBRING GROUP MAKES PROTEST

Damascus, Beloit Business Men Also Express Dissatisfaction Over Sales Tax Operations

SEBRING, April 8.—Dissatisfaction with the execution of the state sales tax law was registered by a representative body of vendors at a meeting of the Sebring Business Men's association last night.

The meeting drew one of the largest attendance the organization has had for some time. Thirty local business men were present at the dinner and the group was increased afterward by other Sebring merchants as well as some from East Alliance, Beloit and Damascus.

Most of those present reported that they had been assessed additional sales tax levies to what their bookkeeping had indicated to their satisfaction was required plus a 15 percent penalty for the alleged delinquency, totaling anywhere from $10 to several hundred dollars. Knowledge of these assessments coupled with notices to the effect that they must be paid in 15 days came so suddenly, various merchants declared, that the blow "knocked the props from under us."

HUSBAND 'COMES BACK FROM DEAD'

Cleveland Woman, Mourning Loss, Informed He's Living

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, April 8.—Word that her husband was alive and a hero of the Uniontown airliner disaster brought "the greatest thrill of my life" to Mrs. Cecelia Challinor late last night.

She and her two children, Rosalind, 14, and Jack, 12, had been informed several hours earlier that the husband and father, Charles G. Challinor, 33, was one of the 11 victims.

Discovery of the survivor's true identity sent a Steubenville family into mourning. Stanley J. Beyersdorfer, Steubenville department store executive, first listed as alive, was given the place on the death list occupied at first by Challinor.

Beyersdorfer's widow, young son and daughter, and father left almost immediately for Uniontown.

Mrs. Challinor was receiving numerous telephone calls of condolence from friends here when a brother called her from Uniontown, shouting "Charles is alive! He's in the hospital here. He's the hero, too."

After Mrs. Challinor called the hospital and talked to her husband, she said "It was just as if he came back from the dead. I felt like going right to him but he said to wait until the weekend."

Challinor, representative of the Palmer Bee Co., engineering concern, has his ankles broken, but he crawled through the wreckage and liberated Miss Nellie Granger, hostess on the plane, who went to telephone for help.

Robert S. Raskoff, 19, of Cleveland, a student at Valley Forge, Pa., military academy, planned to return home on the plane but changed his mind at the last minute.

Salem Rotary Club At Alliance Rally

Representatives from 22 Rotary clubs, including Salem, will assemble at Alliance Country club to attend the fourth annual intercity meeting tonight as guests of Alliance Rotarians.

Among honored guests will be District Governor Paul Barrett of Findlay and Past Governors James Card, John Bentley and Joseph Hartman of Cleveland, Joseph Markley of Canton and Alva Gluck of Minerva.

Principal speaker will be Arch C. Klumph of Cleveland, president of Rotary International in 1916-17, when the Alliance club was organized. He will speak on "Rotary's Place in International Affairs."

Evan Morris will be program chairman.

In favor of tonight's rally the Salem club postponed its regular meeting yesterday noon at the Memorial building.

Ravenna Man Draws $100 Fine In Sebring

Bina Moore, 28, of Ravenna, arrested by State Highway Patrolman A. E. Mercer of Salem on a charge of driving while intoxicated, was fined $100 and costs when arraigned before Mayor F. M. Howell at Sebring yesterday.

The mayor also suspended Moore's driving rights for one year. Unable to pay his fine, he was committed to the Mahoning county jail at Uniontown.

It was Moore whose car crashed into and damaged six new machines on Route 244 near Ellsworth Sunday night. He also told Patrolman Mercer he had been driving all day trying to get to Ravenna from Kent. "I remember of crossing the Ohio-Pennsylvania line one time," he added.

REPAIR STREETS AT COLUMBIANA

Councilmen Discuss Progress of Street and Sewer Projects Now Under Way

COLUMBIANA, April 8.—Street and sewer problems came to the attention of the village council at the regular meeting Tuesday night, presided over by Mayor C. J. Hart.

All members were present.

Solicitor W. O. Wallace announced Lisbon st., would be paved from the intersection of West Park ave. to Union st.

R. C. Miller, president of the board of public affairs, presented a survey and plans for the elimination of sewage trouble on Salem st., designed as a WPA project. It was adopted by the solons.

Street improvement jobs were reported progressing. Following the re-opening of Fairfield ave., soon, Duquesne st., will be closed for repairs.

Council also announced that suit would be brought against property owners having roof water running into sanitary sewers.

E. Liverpool Board Maps Payroll Plan

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 8.—The board of education indicated last night that a uniform salary schedule for elementary and high school teachers will be adopted at a special meeting next month, when 1936-37 term appointments will be considered.

Supt. H. G. Means was instructed to prepare the payroll plan under which teachers will be graded according to training, experience and ability, and submit his recommendations.

Police Vacation Pay Denied At Palestine

EAST PALESTINE, April 8.—Legislation granting members of the police force a two weeks' vacation with pay, was returned to the safety and legislative committees for revision by city council at its meeting.

While no vote was taken on the vacation legislation, councilmen indicated that the two weeks' plan did not meet with their approval, in referring the ordinance back to committee.

More Eggs Needed For Easter Hunt; Sites Announced Today By Joe Kelley

Preparations for the arrival of the Easter Bunny in Salem Saturday morning neared completion today with the announcement by Joe Kelley, manager of the Memorial building, that the annual Easter egg hunt will be staged at the Fourth St. school grounds and Centennial park.

Youngsters up to the age of six years will search for eggs hidden by the bunny at Fourth St. school, while others of grammar school age will seek the Easter treasures at Centennial park. Both hunts will begin at 10 a. m.

Relly stadium has been used in past years for the younger children's hunt, but the site was changed this year because the athletic field has been planted with grass. Kelley was granted permission to use the Fourth St. school grounds today by Supt. E. S. Kerr.

With about 500 youngsters participating annually in the hunt a large number of eggs is necessary. Several times in past years a number of the bunny's friends have been forced to return to their homes without any souvenir of the hunt, Kelley said.

Only a few eggs and some money have been received at the Memorial building so far this week.

Last year 80 dozen eggs were dyed and made ready for the bunny's arrival.

In the event the weatherman fails to look with favor upon the bunny's arrival, the hunt will be held at the Memorial building.

GIRL AWARDED POSTER PRIZE

Mildred Hinchliffe Takes Top Honors in Columbus Event

Mildred Hinchliffe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hinchliffe, living near Winona, was adjudged the winner of the first prize of $7 in grade school groups in the poster contest held in conjunction with Farmers' Week at Ohio State university in January. It was announced today in Columbus.

Mildred's prize winning poster, picked from among those of approximately 18,000 school children, was a winner in the contest conducted by the Winona Farmers' institute several months ago. Some 500 of the posters in the contest at Columbus will be entered in the Junior state fair contest for further prizes.

Mildred, 13, a student in the sixth grade at Center school, was awarded the first prize for her posters in the 5th and 6th grades division at both the Winona and Salem Farmers' institutes.

One Killed, Another Hurt In Auto Crash

CANTON, April 8.—One man was killed and another seriously injured here last night in a traffic collision in front of Little Flower hospital.

Fatally hurt was Charles Schwartz, 50, manager of a local market. Seriously hurt was Albert Klausner, 22, a clerk and driver of Schwartz's auto.

El Badila Jr., 29, auto repairman, who was delivering a car to a customer, was the driver of the other machine. He was released under bond of $1,000 pending a coroner's inquest.

Paper Shows Hitler Fears Air Attack

LONDON, April 8.—The British government published a white paper today disclosing Reichsfuehrer Hitler's fear that Berlin "might easily be reduced to a heap of ashes" from a Russian air attack.

The white paper, outlining Anglo-German-French diplomatic discussions for securing European peace from June 1934 to March 1936, showed that der fuehrer expressed that view to Sir Eric Phipps in Berlin, Dec. 16, when the British ambassador pressed him to start conversations for an air pact.

E. Palestine Sets Graduation June 4

EAST PALESTINE, April 8.—Dates for commencement and baccalaureate services have been approved by the board of education upon recommendation of Supt. T. R. Hersch.

Mussolini Favors Total Annihilation Of Ethiopian Army

(By Associated Press)
ROME, April 8.—Premier Mussolini proclaimed to his ministers today that security for Italy in its East African colonies would be realized only with "total annihilation of the Ethiopian military formation."

Il Duce met his council of ministers in a sudden, extraordinary session which had not been announced in advance. It was held just as the League of Nations conciliation committee of 13 was meeting in Geneva.

Destruction of Emperor Haile Selassie's army, Mussolini told his ministers, "cannot be lacking or delayed."

He paid high tribute to Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander-in-chief of the Fascist forces in East Africa, and to the marshall's troops.

SALEM COMPANY LANDS BIG JOB

Salem Engineering Co., to Build Soaking Pits for Inland

A contract for the construction of all soaking pits for the new Inland Steel Company's modern 48-inch blooming mill, now under construction, has been awarded to the Salem Engineering Co. It was announced here today.

The soaking pits are a new development and are to use fuel for the heating of the ingots.

"This is quite a new departure," officials of the Salem Engineering Co. pointed out, "as generally gaseous fuels have been used for the heating of ingots. The entire industry is watching this installation with great interest."

Delivery is scheduled for June. It is said to be by far the largest contract for industrial furnaces placed by any steel company in the last six months.

Dates Announced For Murder Trials

LISBON, April 8.—Trial of Dudley Adams, indicted for murder in the first degree at a special session of the January grand jury, has been set for May 18, and the trial of Burd Rogers, jointly indicted with Adams, has been set for June 1. This is the first time in the history of local courts when two first degree murder trials have been scheduled within 30 days of each other.

Judge W. F. Lones has ordered the jury commission to meet here April 17 to draw a panel of 75 jurors from the wheel for preliminary examination in the trial of Adams.

The commission has also been directed to meet here May 1 to withdraw a similar venire from the wheel for examination in the trial of Rogers.

Couple On Visit, Home Ransacked

LISBON, April 8.—William A. Weiser and his wife left their home at Bayard March 16 last to go to North Liberty, Ind., to visit friends. They returned March 31 and found all their property had been removed from their home, including clothing and food supplies.

This situation was revealed in a petition filed in common pleas court here by Attorney John Pickering against John R. McAllister, 612 Second st., NW, Canton, Henry Brenner and Louis Petro, both of Bayard, from whom $5,000 is sought by Weiser and his wife as damages.

It is related in the petition that when Weiser and his wife left for Indiana their home was securely locked, and that the defendants entered the property and carried away chattels without authority.

Seek Release Soon Of American Priest

HARBIN, MANCHOUKUA, April 8.—A native Christian convert was reported by gendarmes today to have brought them terms for the release of Rev. Father Clarence Joseph Burns, American, from the bandits who have held him captive in Manchoukuan mountains for months.

The convert succeeded in delivering food to Father Burns and came back with an offer from the bandit chief to release the priest if the encircling troops, sent in pursuit, were withdrawn.

School Stadium At Canton Is Planned

CANTON, April 8.—Specifications for a new $235,000 high school stadium will be drawn up and submitted to Washington for final approval, said WPA officials today.

The board of education voted to guarantee about $46,000 as its share. The stadium would seat 15,000.

Will Bring Total Appropriations for Year to $238,048.09

ESTIMATES MADE ON WATER LINES

Federal Aid for State St., Improvement Will Be Sought

Bringing total appropriations for the year to $238,048.09, a nine-month appropriation measure was approved by city council last night.

The city has been operating for the first three months of the year on a temporary appropriation, totalling $35,923.63. The appropriations for the ensuing nine months total $204,095.46.

Economy has been observed in allocation to every fund, members of the finance committee informed council, the appropriations following largely the figures that have governed during the past year.

List Principal Amounts

Amounts apportioned among the various general funds for the nine-month period are as follows: General fund, $64,778.17—total for year, $82,199.63; water fund, $26,385—total for year, $39,616.17; gas tax, $7,000—total for year, $10,000; general bonds and interest, $47,488.06; assessment bonds and interest, $58,464.23; grand total, for year, $238,048.09.

Engineer F. S. Barchhoff submitted estimates on the laying of water lines at two places. For a proposed project on East Ninth st., and North Union ave., the engineer estimated cost of construction at $2,175, including 2,200 feet of six-inch cast iron pipe, five fire plugs and fittings.

He set $765 as the figure for the proposed water line construction on Summit st., including 800 feet of pipe, one fire plug and fittings. The cost was based on the assumption that WPA labor will be available.

Barchhoff also reported that both the city and the county are drafting plans for improvement of the county ditch, to be presented probably this week to the WPA.

Seek Federal Aid

Councilman A. P. Morris discussed the possibility of improving State st., possibly west to the corporation line, with the aid of federal funds provided through the state highway department. It was pointed out that streets in other important highways have received similar aid. Solicitor Lozier Caplan was instructed to draw up a resolution making a request for federal aid.

Request for sewer facilities from a North Ellsworth ave., property owner was left in the hands of the sewer committee.

A MODEST BILL

Sen. Robert F. Wagner's new housing bill, finally introduced after long suspense, is surprisingly modest in its scope. It contemplates expenditure of almost $1,000,000,000 for slum clearance and house construction for low income groups, but would spread the appropriation over four years.

It is modest because, though designed as a step in the new deal recovery drive, it would advance that drive barely one pace and would nibble only a small corner off the huge housing problem. There, perhaps, is the rub in the whole housing program. Even a spendthrift administration cannot spend enough money to cause more than a tremor of excitement in the vast construction industry.

The housing program must be evaluated, therefore, on other, probably social and political, grounds. Politically, it has cut across, like many new deal measures, well founded American distrust of government competition with private industry. Sen. Wagner is careful to emphasize that his bill provides "every possible safeguard" against such competition, but the proof of the pudding must wait on the eating.

Even as a social measure, the program will have to be weighed later, for it is unlikely the bill will pass in this session of congress. In the meantime, there remain disturbing memories of the lack of even social success in federal slum clearance projects, in low cost housing and in various garden city experiments. Since the governmental method of cost accounting blandly excludes countless important items which private industry must charge to its costs, financial comparisons are tricky. The building projects must be judged upon the basis of their social value, and so far the balance sheet of these intangibles shows little but red ink.

WHAT SAVED THE CCC?

The third birthday of the CCC this week is being made an occasion for review of that most popular of all new deal creations. A few facts stand out from the mass of detail.

Most prominent is the cost of CCC, which had reached $1,204,560,000 by March 1, this year. Members of the corps sent home $260,000,000 to their families. Materials and equipment cost $615,000,000. Food and clothing cost $281,744,000. Other millions were used for the purchase of forest lands.

More than 1,500,000 men, most of them young and untrained, have received pay from CCC. Approximately 3,000,000 dependents of CCC enrollees have benefited through participation in the $30 a month cash allowances earned by the men. In addition to direct benefits the nation has received in return for its billion dollar expenditure an indefinite improvement in the state of its natural resources.

Why has CCC, obviously an expensive relief agency, escaped so largely the dissatisfaction voiced against other relief agencies—PWA, WPA and CWA? The answer seems to be that CCC has appealed to the country's dramatic sense. It has been well organized. Its activities and its human material have been colorful. Unlike other relief agencies, it has remained fixed and stable throughout its existence. At its inception, CCC was not popular. It gained popularity by the ability of its directors to dramatize its activities. As its popularity increased, its defects became less conspicuous. There seems to be a moral in the record of the CCC for government administrators.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, April 8—There is a fascination about those names that make us wonder if they are patents of nobility—or just names. Such, for instance, as King Vidor, Duke Ellington, Baron Wilkes, Prinz Biederman and Marquis Childs. To say nothing of the double header, Don Marquis. Or Rex Stout.

Perhaps best of all is Harold Lord Varney, a magazine editor. There is an almost uncontrollable impulse to place a comma after his first name. There was an office boy on Hampton's named King Royal. But it irked. He thought it too regal and when 21 had it changed to James Smith.

But the fascination of names is not confined solely to those suggesting the pomp of thrones. Among those expressing unusual dignity to me are Keats Speed, Victor Herbert, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Richard Harding Davis and Meredith Nicholson. And one might suspect Edna St. Vincent Millay named herself.

The most amusing of the celebrity names, I think, is that of the erudite editor of The Nation—Joseph Wood Krutch. Either he lacks humor or has an abundant supply to so sign his articles. Men with talent, however, can give gusto to ridiculed names. Perry Crosby and Percy Hammond, for example.

Paul Whiteman is having another finish fight with avoidrups. Having shucked down to the proper thinness, he began to break training and indulge a few of the dishes he craved. Now and then, too, he took on several beakers of his favorite brew—and before he knew it was some 40 pounds heavier. So he is back on the one meal a day diet and expects to stay until he puts his baton away and retires to his ranch in Colorado. Then all bets are off. He just expects to sit, gorge and listen to the radio.

Whiteman was the target for a mean bit of ribbing during the most rigid stretch of his diet several years ago. Charlie Butterworth arranged to have the ribber join them at midnight when Paul was always hungriest and permitted to nibble only at a half apple. The ribber, bearing down on a Texas-sized raw hamburger with onions and a sedit of beer, told of arriving home the night before, ravenous. And built up a great picture of going to the ice box and finding a cold boiled potato, a hock of boiled ham and a bottle of chilled milk. Whiteman, mincing at his apple, could stand it no longer, pushed back his dessert plate and with tears trickling his cheeks walked out into the night.

Seventh avenue had a swingback to other days recently when one of those Greek candy kitchens with a window demonstrator made an old-fashioned bow for recognition. In Herculean fashion, the demonstrator with Strangler Lewis bare shoulders and handle-bar mustaches, featured lariat his thick rope of candy around a wall hook to pull it white. Sidewalk crowds were attracted—I noticed Jack Dempsey getting an eyeful—but few evidently went inside, and in a day or so a "For Rent" sign was up.

And among the edible nick-nack evanishments in Manhattan is the portable popcorn stand that used to dot many corners. There was one in Broad street to which the elder Morgan sent office boys. There were many in the theatrical zone of Broadway. Chorus girls were popcorn addicts, as were gamblers. The World once told of Diamond Jim Brady on way from a play buying out a several-bushel supply from a stand in front of the Normandie. He circled the park in a Victoria until he had downed it. Then went on to Rector's for his midnight stoke. Today, I do not know of a single popcorn stand in midtown and only one place—Mary Elizabeth's—to procure popcorn balls.

There was a character who used to haunt the bars called Pop Corn Bill. Irvin Cobb glorified him in a Saturday Evening Post foliation. Bill's capacity for popcorn inspired many bets. He could polish off one of those huge bowls—there was one in every bar—filled to overflowing, without turning a hair. And his capacity for liquor was just as outstanding. But he died one day after a performance in the Martinique bar. And Frank O'Malley, as you might imagine, did a grand "obit" for him in The Sun.

They were talking about the advent of the gas stove. Baird Leonard's parents installed one and then went on a six months' tour of Europe, leaving the house in charge of Mandy, the cook. Upon their return, Mandy was asked about the stove. "I declare," she exclaimed, "that's the beatenest" thing ever I see. It ain't gone out yet."

I'm wondering what will happen to the male garter business. Most of my friends, as well as myself, use elongated hosiery with woven elastic bands at the top to hold them in place. King Edward kicked the idea onto the first pages when he revealed a garterless calf at an industrial exhibit. The change just about shears my only distinction. For a number of years I was head man of the Sidewalk Garter Draggers.

(Issue of April 8, 1916)

At a meeting of the board of control of the Salem Council Agencies Thursday the subject of child vagrancy was discussed with much interest and, as a result, a special committee was named to confer with Mayor Johnson with a view to having curfew regulations put in force.

At an estimated cost of $75 each, four new six-inch fire hydrants will be installed in the business section of the town before the East Main st. paving is laid.

A notable event in Odd Fellows' circles here will be in the institution on April 19 of a ladies auxiliary to Canton Salem No. 11, Patriarchs Militant.

THE STARS SAY

For Thursday, April 9

The planetary influences for this day are very favorable for a stabilizing of the affairs, after much stagnation and difficulty. Through industry and very wise judgment crystallized matters will be put on a practical and sound basis, resulting in increased possessions and the way to dependable accumulations. Elders may assist in this restoration and also in lagging investments, insurance or other legal transactions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which much will be accomplished in putting affairs on a solid basis and increasing the possessions.

A child born on this day may be industrious, resolute and dependable. It may attain profit by personal popularity.

Albuminuria

MANY PERSONS misunderstand what is meant by albumin in the urine, or "albuminuria," as the doctors call it. There is a popular idea that to have even a small amount of albumin is a very serious matter.

Fortunately, medical science has advanced so that more is known about this symptom. In puzzling cases elaborate tests are made to determine whether the kidneys are at fault. Of course, the presence of considerable amounts of albumin must never be disregarded. Trifling quantities of albumin are almost always found. Usually there is no more than a slight trace.

Since the kidneys are delicate organs and like other structures easily irritated, the albumin content is easily and quickly increased. For this reason albuminuria is almost invariably associated with irritation and inflammation of the kidneys. Any disorder of the kidney may lead to large amounts of albumin in the urine. In such cases the urine is likely to contain pus cells and blood cells.

These may be signs of serious kidney damage. Certainly they should serve as warnings never to be ignored. But most persons who have albumin are free of kidney damage and need not fear that they are victims of serious kidney trouble. They may surely be reassured if there are no other abnormal findings in the urine.

Those Showing It

If the diet contains an excessive amount of protein substances the kidneys may secrete considerable albumin. Persons who indulge in an improperly high protein diet, including excessive quantities of meats, fish and eggs, will usually show albumin.

Albuminuria is commonly found among athletes and others engaged in strenuous work. It is not infrequent symptoms of persons who are obliged to indulge in prolonged standing or sitting. It is then spoken of as an "occupational" symptom and is medically known as "orthostatic albuminuria." The albumin disappears with rest and change of work.

Some persons are more likely to present these symptoms than others. They may appear to be in perfect health, entirely free from pain or discomfort. Yet examination of the urine shows it to be loaded with albumin. Many of these cases are believed to be due to some hereditary factor.

Answers to Health Queries
Mrs. M. L. Q.—Will you please give me a diet to help overcome high blood pressure.
A.—For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

M. T. Q.—My father, a man of 70, has high blood pressure. What should he do to improve his condition? Is there a specific diet to be followed in such cases? Nervousness seems to be at the source of his trouble.

A.—Careful diet and regular habits should be of general benefit and advantage. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Sen. Q.—My father is troubled with rheumatism which is always worse during the cold weather. Should he follow a specific diet?

A.—Try to find the underlying source of infection first of all. A careful diet should be of general benefit and advantage. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed, stamped envelopes with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland in care of this newspaper at its main office in this city.

"DAUGHTERS OF VENUS"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER XXV

And then, before Von Guerdon had time to say more, he was surprised to see two strangers enter the room without troubling to remove their hats. Both wore the lowering men that plain clothes men universally affect.

"I'm afraid, gentlemen, you forgot to knock," Von Guerdon said, suddenly frigid.

"That's all right, buddy," replied the chunkier of the two. "Which of these girls is Katie Schmidt?"

The question was scarcely necessary, because at the mention of her name, Katie emitted a stifled cry, and much of the peach color suddenly went out of her new complexion.

"I guess that's her, all right," said the scout detective with satisfaction. "Now don't start crying, sister. Nobody's gonna hurt you. Just be a good girl and come along."

If the detective expected Katie to whine or cry or pull back they were mistaken. That first low cry of alarm had misled them.

Her face had changed color, but her eyes began to gather something of the fierceness of a small animal caught in a trap.

"All right," she said almost angrily. "I'll go." There was a defiant shrug of her small shoulders.

"What's this all about?" Juliet asked sharply. "You're policemen, aren't you?"

"That's it, lady," replied the chunky one heartily. "Sorry to bust in this way, but it's our duty. We've been looking for this young lady quite some time. Ready sister?"

"But why are you arresting her?" Von Guerdon put in. "I'm sure the girl's not a criminal."

One of the detectives grinned. "The jury will decide that. If she'd ever got out of this place we'd never found her—the way she's changed her appearance. It's wonderful, ain't it, the way they can turn out? And she's had this here plastic surgery done, too."

"What is the charge against her?" asked Juliet.

It was Katie herself who answered—a wrought-up youngster who, all at once, was trembling with a nameless emotion that was half anger and half satisfaction. There was a defiance, too, in the rasp of her voice, the fling of her glistening platinum head.

"I'll tell you what the cops want me for!" she blurted out. "They're gonna claim I stole the money to pay for getting myself remodelled."

"Then you lied to me about selling—what was it—a small farm?" Juliet asked sadly.

"I had to tell something didn't I?" demanded Katie angrily. "I never owned a chicken, much less a farm full of 'em. No I was second maid out in Beverly Hills. The people was an old couple—dirty old boarders, they were. I knowed where they kept the money. Stinky things! They worked everybody to death for almost nothin'. I cleaned the rooms and made the beds and the little safe in the wall of their bedroom."

"And you stole the money?" asked the chunky detective, scenting a quick confession and the resultant credit to himself.

"I don't say I did and I don't say I didn't," flung back Katie. "I was tired of looking like a scare-crow, that's all. You can put me in the penitentiary as long as you like, but you can't take away my beauty. I've got that! It's paid for and nobody can make me give it up!"

She was very nearly in a rare by now, an erect, little figure of small swelling curves and pencilled brows. Silvery lights glinted on her shimmering head. She was breathing heavily. Her hands, once reddened and chapped, but now with a white lacquered look, were clenched into compact little fists.

Juliet saw all this and experienced a hot dissolving sensation around her heart.

"Poor little thing!" she thought. "On the poor little child!"

Really Katie was scarcely more than a child and now, after her reckless outburst, she was beginning to cry.

Katie had made her desperate defiance of society, but she was not hardened enough to sustain the frozen attitude. The tears came now copious and sudden like a spring shower, a wet rush that started the mascara running and left blackish streaks down her face.

At the sight of this, Von Guerdon was moved—though it was futile enough—to pay her on the back.

"You'll be all right, you'll be all right," he kept repeating helplessly. "Yeah, dry your face and come along, sister," said the detective, not unkindly.

But Katie had flung her small, scolding body into Juliet's arms, clinging damply and tenaciously to her last hold on freedom. Juliet tried to talk to her, but what was there to say?

"Yes, yes, I understand everything, Katie," she whispered with a feeling that in another minute she would be sobbing herself. "It's all right, darling. You couldn't help it, could you? I know you're not a thief, honey. Juliet knows! Don't worry—I'll stand by you. Do you hear? I'm going to stand by you."

Juliet managed to disentangle herself, to turn and face the detectives.

"Look here, we can't let them put this child in the penitentiary," she said, her own voice shaking. "If she stole the money and spent it here in this Institute. Well, I am in charge of this place and we're going to refund every cent she took. It will all be paid back, every penny. Can't she be paroled or the charges dismissed or something?"

"Lots of girls get paroled," sobbed Katie.

"There's nothing really wrong with the girl," Juliet argued. "If you'll let her off, I'll promise to look after her myself. She's only a child. I'll take her in my own home and keep her. It's too perfectly hideous to send her to prison. All she wanted was beauty—she was almost a deformity and she wanted to look like other girls. Maybe I'd have done the same thing myself."

And you stole the money?" asked the chunky detective, scenting a quick confession and the resultant credit to himself.

The detectives looked from one to another in that wise way detectives have. Perhaps they, too, were somewhat touched, if such things can happen to detectives.

"Well, it's up to you lady," said one of them. "I guess you might be able to spring the case on that basis. Looks like Katie landed in a soft spot, don't it, Mike?"

Katie lifted a tear stained face to Juliet and Von Guerdon.

"I hate—" she sobbed, "I hate—to have Mr. O'Hara find this out."

Juliet against her will, was now spending almost every evening with Madame Hubert and O'Hara.

The old lady had been removed from the hospital to her home, where she held court in a huge canopied bed, propped up with silken cushions and clad in a pink quilted affair that engulfed her like a mandarin's robe.

The spinal operation had been sensationally successful.

Before long she could be up and about with her usual cricket-like briskness. Her bent back would be straight; she spoke of this with a delight that contrasted oddly with her former lack of personal vanity.

It was Saturday night and neither O'Hara nor Juliet cared particularly to spend a long and aimless evening with the Madame, inasmuch as her invitation always sounded like a command.

Juliet had nothing to conceal in a business way, but it was not pleasant to undergo these endless cross-examinations, about everything that transpired at the Institute, particularly since Madame Hubert seemed to give scant attention to her careful answers.

"You oughtn't worry yourself about these matters, Madame," O'Hara told her. "Everything is going without a hitch."

"Ah, but the old lady still likes to keep a finger in the pie," she reminded him. "These four walls all day long get very tiresome."

The room, to Juliet, was perfectly unendurable.

Furnished in the French manner, it was overcrowded with gilt chairs, ruffled curtains, jardinières, silk pin cushions, lamps with glass bangles, hassocks and other vaguely decorative odds and ends, all permeated with an inescapable perfume that proved the persistence of Madame Hubert's Parisienne ideas.

"Perhaps we should go," said Juliet when ten o'clock had passed. Aren't we interfering with your rest?"

O'Hara, too, was restless and eager to be away.

No one could accuse him of lacking sympathy for Madame Hubert, but his days were arduous now. These night sessions were a waste of time.

During them he wondered impatiently if Madame Hubert realized fully how her authority had passed into Juliet's hands.

Lisbon Girl Is Bride Of E.F. Filler

Miss Verda May Flanagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Flanagan of Lincoln day, Lisbon, became the bride of E. Frederick Filler, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Filler of Euclid st., in a quiet ceremony at 9:30 this morning in Lisbon. Rev. J. Morgan Cox, pastor of the Presbyterian church there, officiated at the ceremony at his home.

Attendants were Miss Etta Mae Corbett of Lisbon and E. Raymond Alexander of Salem. The bride wore a poudre blue suit with gray accessories and her corsage was of pink delphinium and Talsman roses. Miss Corbett wore a navy blue suit with gray accessories. Her corsage was of yellow zinnias and Talsman roses.

Mrs. Filler, a graduate of the Lisbon High school and the Salem Business college, is employed as stenographer by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. here. Mr. Filler is a graduate of the Salem High school, attended Miami university and the Salem Business college and is employed by the Equitable Life Insurance company of Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Filler left on a trip for Washington, D. C., and other eastern points. They will be at home to their friends at the Salem Country club after April 14.

Membership Contest Ends In Dinner

Winners in a recent membership contest conducted by the Ladies auxiliary of the B. P. O. Elks were entertained at a dinner last evening by the losers. The dinner, served at 6:30 at the Elks home, was attended by 40 auxiliary members.

During the lodge session a class of new candidates was initiated and plans were made for a covered dish supper April 21 for members and their husbands. The supper will be served at 6:30 p. m. at the home.

Cards were enjoyed after the session, with bridge, "500" and bingo in play. Mrs. C. V. Rakestraw was winner of the bridge prize. Mrs. Louis Mattevi was awarded the "500" trophy and Mrs. W. L. Glass, the bingo prize.

D. of A. To Attend District Meeting

Plymouth council No. 183, Daughters of America, meeting last night at the hall, made plans to attend a meeting of the lodges of District No. 5 in Alliance on May 6. The Salem degree team will introduce the deputies during that meeting when representatives of the 21 lodges of the district are expected to be present.

Mrs. Otis Flick was winner of the door prize at last night's meeting.

The council will convene in two weeks at the hall.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

We have grouped a batch of recipes, collected from various sources and we do hope that you will find at least one dish that will become a favorite at your table.

So here goes—beginning with a recipe that comes from Yorkshire, a country in northeastern England, famous for its good cooking, especially Yorkshire pudding. For Yorkshire cakes, mix and beat well together two pounds of flour, four ounces of butter melted in a pint of milk, three spoonfuls of yeast and two eggs. Leave the mixture to rise then knead it. Form into cakes and let these rise on tins before you bake them. Bake in a slow oven.

Then try a batch of cheese pancakes which are made from a thin pancake batter of egg, milk, flour and a little salt. Let stand for at least an hour and a half. Then stir in three tablespoons of grated cheese, drop in spoonfuls into smoking hot fat and when done lift and drain on paper. Sprinkle the remainder of the cheese using about four tablespoons in all, roll up usual way and serve either hot or cold. Before we get away from batter dishes make a batter by mixing together an egg, three tablespoons of flour, a pinch of salt and half a pint of milk. Fry the omelette, then put a little cooked and seasoned sausage meat in each, fold over and brown on both sides.

Corn Chowder
For a swell Sunday night supper dish, try corn chowder. Dice two heads of celery and cook for 45 minutes with a pound of tomatoes in a quart of water. Thicken with a paste made by rubbing together an egg, three tablespoons of flour, a pinch of salt and half a pint of milk. When required, heat up with the contents of a can of corn (or more, if desired) and half a pound of grated cheese. A little chopped pimento may be added. Serve with those nice, big, round pilot crackers.

For a nice fish dish, butter well a casserole and sprinkle in a layer of finely-chopped onion and some parsley. Have ready some filets of sole or any other flat fish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and place in casserole. Cover with a layer of chopped onion and parsley and pour in a pint of good gravy flavored with ketchup. Sprinkle some bread crumbs on top and add little pieces of butter and bake for half an hour. If you have some cold boiled fish left over, pound it well and then add two tablespoons anchovy sauce, mix well and press into dish with one and a half ounces of butter, melted. Chill. This makes a nice sandwich filling.

CANDY PLAYS an important role at various holidays, but it should not end there. Candy always is an enjoyable gift for friends, and then it is nice to have around when company comes.

But there are other ways to make use of candy than those mentioned. Why not include it in the daily table menu? For breakfast, instead of serving hot cereal in the commonplace manner, decorate by sprinkling over the top bits of broken red (cinnamon) and green (mint) stick candy.

Unique Salad
For dinner, surprise your family with a unique salad to accompany the main course. Dip marshmallow in beaten egg, then in fine crumbs. Fry in deep fat for one minute. Set each marshmallow on a ring of canned pineapple, delicately browned in butter.

Then what about a novel dessert, orange nut whip? Freeze to a mush in the rapid freezing unit of the refrigerator one cup of orange juice and one-half cup of sugar. Then fold in one cup of whipped cream and one cup of peanut brittle, rolled fine. Remove to refrigerator until frozen again, then serve. The ingredients given serve from six to eight people.

For Evening Snack
For the guests who come in some night for bridge, or just for talk, serve chocolate toasts. Just melt chocolate-covered peppermints over boiling water and spread on unsalted crackers. Sprinkle with coconut or nut meats. Brown under broiler, turned low.

Black bottom pie is another grand holiday dessert. Melt four small plain chocolate bars over boiling water (or use nut-filled bars instead). Spread the chocolate evenly over the entire surface of a baked pie shell add custard filling and top with whipped cream. Place in refrigerator until ready for serving.

Defendant Testifies In Affections Suit
MARION, April 8.—Otto G. Schlentz, 50, building supply dealer testified yesterday that he never promised to marry his 26-year-old stenographer, Miss Leona Fryman of Richmond, who asked a $10,000 judgment to recompense her for "a series of weddings which were postponed."

Stuebenville Pastor Made Defendant In An Affections Suit
(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 8.—Both Miss Cora Lillian Burnham and Rev. Harold C. Zeis were silent today in her $100,000 breach of promise suit filed against him in federal district court on the basis of affectionate letters she asserted he had written.
Suits Marriage Promise
Miss Burnham asserted in the suit Mr. Zeis, 39-year-old rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church at Stuebenville, agreed in 1928 to marry her but repudiated the agreement in 1935 and "in deliberate and malicious violation thereof" married Mrs. A. B. Sharp of Stuebenville, Jan. 3, 1936.
Her complaint quoted from letters one addressing her as "My darling wife," dated "on shipboard, July 29, 1935." This letter said, she contended:
"Seems I can feel your love coming over the miles. I adore you. You'll always love me, won't you? You are my everything. We'll go to Europe on our honeymoon, or else—the first one was wonderful, but not half as important as the second. We drink here with our lunch—have Scotch and soda before dinner and have wine or champagne after dinner. Precious person, you are tops. Forever yours, Hal."
Mr. Zeis, a native of Port Clinton, declined comment on the suit. Miss Burnham likewise refused to discuss it in New York.

WADC Will Boost Power In Davtime

BEGIN INQUIRY IN PLANE CRASH

The commerce department in Washington, said, however, a check on beacons by an air commerce bureau pilot showed them to be "accurate and functioning." The report added two commercial pilots also reported the beams all right. Lieut. Pickering and other investigators who reached the desolate mountainside seven miles from Uniontown soon after Miss Granger's report said the big transport crashed with terrific force. One wing apparently was ripped off by the limb of a tree while the ship skidded the hilltop. It hurtled on to tear through a scattered yards of underbrush and hundreds of pieces of wreckage for hundreds of feet.

In Rear of Plane
The heaviest and two survivors were in the rear of the Sun Racer and to that fact they owed their lives. That part of the ship did not catch fire.

She told Frye in a telephone conversation that the impact made her unconscious, and added: "When I came to I could see the sky above me. There was a gaping hole in the top of the fuselage and the wreckage was strewn in every direction."

"I got up and walked—only a few paces, I think. Then I heard a man call. He was outside the plane. I grabbed a blanket automatically and went over and spread it over him."

"I heard a woman cough, she was Mrs. Ellenstein. I pulled her away from the plane at just about the time it started to blaze."

The little brunette heroine then began her hunt through the forests for a telephone. She went to two cabins without success.

Finally she reached the home of Mrs. R. E. Addis and telephoned to C. A. Williams of the TWA in Pittsburgh—four hours after the Sun Racer was due there.

Rings and a handkerchief discovered on the charred body of Bayersdorfer served to identify him. His widow came here from Steubenville.

Salesman Lucky He Didn't Make Flight
COLUMBUS, April 8.—J. W. Harper, Los Angeles airplane salesman who narrowly missed booking passage on the airliner which crashed yesterday in Pennsylvania killing 11, scanned the skies today to determine whether he should continue his trip to the west coast by air or rail.

Harper came here by train yesterday, he said, because he didn't like the weather. He said he previously had planned to fly on the ill-fated liner.

Electric power sales continue to show marked improvement and extension of the long upward trend. Gross revenues for the utility industry in 1933 approached the 1930 level, notwithstanding substantial general business activity. By present indications the continued demand for increasing use of electrical energy in future years will be more dependent on the further development of present markets rather than the extension of service areas in the last decade. Further rate reductions may tend to retard future rapid expansion in gross earnings. To offset reduced rates increasing taxes and government competition the industry's future earnings appear to be dependent on control of expenses and its solution of political problems. The utility operating companies continue to be the most conservative group for investment in the utility industry. This group is fundamentally closer to the sources of earnings, less regulated by all government agencies, and also subject to fewer taxes. Continued retention of most of the operating common stocks shown in the above analysis would appear advisable at the present time.

DEATHS

ALBERT E. SUMMERS
HOMEWORTH, April 8.—The military funeral for Albert E. Summers, 46, who died at the Soldiers' home in Dayton Monday, was held at the Jackson-Rutledge funeral home in Minerva Sunday afternoon. Burial was made in the Mount Zion cemetery.

He was a veteran of the World War, a member of the Christian church and was a telegraph operator by vocation. He had been ill the last six years.

Surviving are his mother Mrs. Emma Mangus Summers, his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Mercer Summers, three children, Junior, James and Morris Jean, two brothers, DeWitt, of Bayard, Eugene of Alliance and Argus of Hudson, four sisters, Mrs. Zillah Neiderheiser and Mrs. Myrtle Geismann of Alliance, Mrs. Perry Kelly of East Rochester and Mrs. A. A. Johns of East Canton.

MISS MARGARET THOMPSON
Rites for Miss Margaret Ann Thompson, 65, of Deerfield were held at the home at 3 p. m. today with Rev. W. C. McCallum of First Christian church officiating. Burial was made in Deerfield.

Miss Thompson died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Martha Newton at Alliance on Saturday. Born in New Albany, she had lived in Deerfield 47 years and was a member of the Deerfield Christian church.

Besides the sister, she leaves three brothers, O. L., C. G. and R. J. Thompson of Deerfield.

Hit By Man's Body, Clevelandler Dies
CLEVELAND, April 8.—The estate of Jesse Webb, veteran newspaperman, was named defendant in a suit for $25,000 damages, on file in common pleas court today. Joseph Gross asserted he was injured by Webb's body as it plunged from a hotel window. He characterized the plunge as "wanton disregard for the rights and safety of pedestrians."

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the bowels with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and mild instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, dull complexion caused by constipation.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with constipation and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two at bedtime for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 50c, 60c.

Bowling Enthusiasts Turn Attention To City Tenpin Tourney

Event To Get Under Way At Grate Recreation And Masonic Alleys April 21

Present Indications Point to Entry List of Over 20 Five-Man Teams; Deadline for Entries in Tournament Set as April 15

As activity in the Class A league rapidly draws to a close and the Class B circuit heads into the home stretch, bowling enthusiasts throughout Salem have turned their attention to preparing for the city handicap tenpin tournament which gets under way at the Grate Recreation and Masonic temple alleys April 21.

Present indications point to an entry of over 20 teams in the five-man event and more than 125 keglers in the doubles and singles divisions, John Carpenter, secretary of the Salem City Bowling association, estimated today.

The tournament is open to all keglers in Salem and vicinity, regardless of whether they have, or have not bowled in the league contests.

Handicaps
To regular league bowlers, the handicap will be two-thirds of the difference between their official average of April 17 and 200, the "scratch" score of the tournament.

Non-regular league bowlers will be handicapped one-half of the difference between their average and "scratch" while all bowlers who have not competed in a recorded league game will be given

BOWLING NEWS

Although new pins brought disaster to the scores of many of the Class A keglers at the Masonic temple last night, the Mullins Sinks found the shining maple much to their liking and hammered out games of 1,010, 910 and 992 to win three straight from Mullins Foremen.

Bob White set the pace for the Sinks with games of 224-202 and 200 for a 626 series while Curt Shepard was not far behind with 226, 204 and 179 for a 609 series.

Winning three games from the Legion keglers, the Salem News five brought its string of victories in the last round to 17. The Legion was "off form" in all three games. A 240 single game and a 570 series by Forest Bishop of The News were high scores of the match.

Dale Rafferty chalked up a 254 single game to turn in the best performance as the K. of C. quintet defeated the City Hall alleymen in two out of three games. "Red" White led the City Hall with a 231 single game and a three game total of 593.

A 218 by Dixon and a 576 series by Jim Primm were the top scores for the Elks when they won two out of three from the Masons.

EIGHT QUALIFY FOR AAU BOUTS

Ohio Northern College Student Is Sensation of Eliminations

CINCINNATI, April 8.—Eight amateur boxers from Toledo, Dayton, Oxford, Xenia and Cincinnati stood qualified and ready today for competition in the senior national A. A. U. boxing championship tournament in Cleveland April 15, 16, and 17.

Fists flew in the music hall arena here for more than four hours in district qualifying rounds. The sensation of the meet was C. Niewiadomski, collegian from Ohio Northern university at Ada, Ohio, who won a decision over Benny Blaski of the Toledo Y. M. C. A. to win the welterweight title.

Unpopular Decision
Ed Hackley, Negro welterweight from Toledo, was awarded an unpopular decision over Don Koons of Hamilton to clinch that crown.

Wilburforce, Negro university at Xenia, entered a number of contestants.

Nelson Blakely, Negro bantam, appeared one of the school's hopes, but he dislocated a shoulder in the first round and lost on a technical knockout.

Summary:
Flyweight—Jackie Miller, Cincinnati, won decision over Art McBride, Toledo.

Bantamweight—Charley Milazze, Cincinnati, knocked out Clarence Johnson, Cincinnati; Nelson Blakely, Wilburforce, won decision over Ken Schuyler, Toledo. Milazze won on technical knockout in first round over Blakely for title.

Featherweight—Edo Woods, Cincinnati, knocked out Don Landowski, Toledo, first round; Ben Ankey, Dayton, won decision over Jack Rogers, Miami university; Woods decisioned Ankey for title.

Gets Decision
Lightweight—Norman Hinton, Toledo, won decision over Israel Clemons, Cincinnati.

Welterweight—Benny Blaski, Toledo, won decision over Buse Smith, Wilburforce, C. Niewiadomski, Ohio Northern university, won decision over John Castro, Cincinnati. Niewiadomski decisioned Blaski for title.

Middleweight—Pete Urban, Cincinnati, decisioned Harry Shockley, Cincinnati; Noel Dawson, Toledo, lost decision to Don Popp, Cincinnati; Urban beat Popp for title.

Light heavyweight—Wilbur McClure, Toledo, decisioned Doug Johnson, Wilburforce; Jerry Williams, Miami university, decisioned Ray Stephenson, Toledo. Williams beat McClure for title.

Heavyweight—Ed Hackley, Toledo, decisioned Don Koons for title.

GEORGE NICHOLS WINS COMEBACK

Holds John Henry Lewis to Draw in Non-Title Fight Last Night

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 8.—George Nichols, who lost his National Boxing association light heavyweight title four years ago without throwing a punch, is back after a championship bout.

Nichols, who won his NBA crown in 1932 as a 100 to 1 shot, last night held John Henry Lewis, champion, to a draw in a ten round, non-title bout in Buffalo's Broadway auditorium.

Today, the former champion was more confident than ever his showing will land him in the same ring with Lewis in a fifteen round affair with the title at stake.

Nichols' most effective weapon was a hard left hand which he kept constantly in Lewis' face, throwing the punch from his southpaw stance.

Lewis appeared over-confident at the start but settled down and forced the battle.

John Carroll Coach May Secure Position

CLEVELAND, April 8.—Ray Watts, head coach at Baldwin-Wallace, said today he was considering asking approval of the appointment of Ralph Vince, former John Carroll coach, to the Yellow Jacket's staff.

At the same time, Vince's successor at Carroll, Tom Conley, announced that Frank Gaul, one of the heretics of the Notre Dame victory over Ohio State last fall, would be his backfield tutor at Carroll.

Buck Scrubs Lose

COLUMBUS, April 8.—The Ohio State university scrubs were no match for the regular football team yesterday and went down to defeat 19 to 0, as the second week of spring grid practice got under way.

Touchdowns were scored by Dick Nardi and John Bettridge, the latter crossing the goal line twice.

New York—Lou Ambers, 136, Herkimer, N. Y., outpointed Pete Mascia, 139½, New York, 60.

Training Camp Slants

(By Associated Press)

HIGH POINT, N. C.—At least three Yankees will be waiting in New York while the team continues on its northward exhibition trek. Joe Di Maggio has been in the big city for a couple of days for treatment to his instep while Pat Malone and Frankie Crosetti started on their way last night. Crosetti was struck on the face by a foul ball and Malone has tonsillitis.

Pitching Assignments

DANVILLE, Va.—Jimmy Wilson of the Phils has nominated Bucky Walters and Hal Kelleher to pitch against the A's in the annual city series Saturday and Sunday. Kelleher shared the mound duties with Moore against Atlanta yesterday.

Herman Reports

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.—Babe Herman, last of the Reds' hold-outs, was expected to report here today as the team resumes the series with Detroit. Gene Schott, the only home townier on the Reds roster, was slated to oppose General Crowder on the hill.

LOWERS RECORD IN SWIM EVENT

Jack Gorman Smashes His Own Mark in N. E. O. Meet at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, April 8.—Jack Gorman of Cleveland Central Y. M. C. A. lowered his own district record by one and one-half seconds in the 150-yard individual medley event of the Northeastern Ohio A. A. U. swimming meet last night.

His time was one minute, 44.2 seconds.

Nelson Otis of Cleveland set a new district record in the 440-yard free style. His time was five minutes, 21.3 seconds. Gorman held the old record of five minutes, 32.4 seconds.

Elwood Woodling of Akron broke a third record by swimming the 150-yard backstroke in 1:47.5. Jimmy Troughton set the old record of 1:48.5 two years ago.

Fight Results

BUFFALO, N. Y.—John Henry Lewis, 176, world light heavyweight champion, and George Nichols, 177, Buffalo, drew, (10).

PREDICT GOOD YEAR FOR FAIR

Horse Races Expected to Provide Best Sports Event in State

COLUMBUS, April 8.—W. J. Galvin of Wilmington, in charge of the state fair speed department, predicted today the fair horse races would provide the best sports attraction in the state this summer with the inaugural of a 14-event grand circuit meeting Aug. 31-Sept. 5.

Entries for the grand circuit, which will offer substantially increased purses, close April 20.

E. Roland Harriman of New York chairman of the trotting horse club of America, predicted new records for two-lap courses on the fast, half-mile fairgrounds track. The grand circuit meetings usually are held on mile tracks.

Events will include the Geers' stake, named for the late Edward F. (Pop) Geers, noted reinsman; the governor's stake, the director of agriculture's stake, and a three-year-old trot.

The Geers' stake will have two divisions each worth at least $3,500, one for juveniles and one for three-year-old pacers. Entries have closed.

The governor's stake will have a $1,500 purse for three-year-old trotters. The colts must be owned in Ohio when nominated and raced. The director of agriculture's stake for $1,000 will be a two-year-old trot under similar conditions.

The three-year-old trot, with a $1,500 purse and open to the country, is expected to draw many of the entries in the Hambletonian stake at Goshen Aug. 12.

Bargains are plentiful. The ads. will tell you where.

Penn Relays Are Expected To Produce Another Clash Between Owens, Peacock

Ohio State Track Coach Predicts Championship for Buckeye Thinclads; Jesse Counted on for Points in 100 and Broad Jump

COLUMBUS, April 8.—Expected to produce another chapter in the "battle of the dashes" between Eulace Peacock, Temple University Negro star, and Jesse Owens, Ebony Express of the Buckeye squad, and a possible world's record in the broad jump, the 1936 Penn Relays at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 24-25, today brought forth predictions of a team title for Ohio State by Larry Snyder, Buck track coach.

With Owens expected to capture both the 100-meter dash and broad jump, for which he has either tied or broken world's records, and Charles Beetham, defending Western Conference champion, and Dave Albritton counted on to take first in the half-mile and high jump respectively, Snyder predicted the Scarlet and Gray "will be hard to defeat in either the Penn Relays or Western Conference meet, next month."

The 100-meter field for the annual Pennsylvania track and field classic reduced to 11 by the adoption of an "invitation" plan this year, the Temple and Ohio State stars will meet for the fifth time in two years with Peacock boasting four successive victories over Owens.

Recent eligibility of Melvin Walter is also expected to add points to the Buck total in the high jump while Bob Pettigrew, in the javelin throw, and George O'Brien, in the 880 and mile run, likewise are counted upon to finish "in the money."

Little is known of the capabilities of the Buck mile relay team, composed of Beetham, O'Brien, Bieker and Sexton but Snyder is optimistically picking it to land higher than fifth place.

In addition to these, Ohio State is picked to register pointage in the pole vault, with Pettigrew, and in the mile and two mile events with Johnny Sullivan.

Lack of support of Owens' three record-smashing performances cost the Buckeyes the Big Ten title last year and Snyder evidently is making sure like circumstances will not hamper the Scarlet and Gray forces this year.

Beetham, author of the fastest 880-yard run in collegiate circles last year and Big Ten indoor and outdoor champion, although stepping slightly higher than the calibre of competition afforded by the

DAVEY PUTS O. K. ON 4-YEAR BILL

Measure Provides Longer Terms for County Elective Officials

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 8.—The Ohio supreme court was expected today to be asked to determine the status of both county office candidates and incumbents following Gov. Martin L. Davey's approval of the Gilbert bill providing four-year terms for all county elective officials.

In informal opinions the offices of the attorney general and the secretary of state differed over the immediate significance of the bill, which will become law in 90 days. Supported by several attorneys, the attorney general's office held that the law would apply to all offices involved in the November election.

The secretary of state's office held that present laws calling for two-year terms would prevail for successful candidates because election processes would be well under way at the end of 90 days. Under that interpretation, the four-year terms would not start for two more years.

Governor Davey also signed the "fair trade" bill. It seeks to prohibit price cutting on trade-marked articles on which the manufacturer sets a retail price.

"Potato King" Dies
POMEROY, April 8.—Amos Walker, 78, of Cheshire, one-time "potato king" of Ohio, died today at the home of Horace Hermann, where he had stopped while returning from a business visit to Pomero-y. Doctors said a cerebral hemorrhage caused his death.

Saw Mill Boiler Explodes; 3 Dead

HARLAN, Ky., April 8.—Three men were killed and five others injured today in an explosion of a saw mill boiler at the mouth of Bob's creek near Cawood, eight miles south of here.

The dead: John Arrowood, 49, operator of the mill on a lease. Clay Carter, 18, An unidentified youth about 19 years old.

Winds Topple Walls After Bucyrus Fire

BUCYRUS, April 8.—High winds toppled two three-story brick walls, left standing after fire razed the Bucyrus opera house, Jan. 21, and a garage yesterday. H. A. Paxton, garage owner, estimated damage at $12,000.

Hospital Notes
Mrs. Eva McAfee of Columbiana has entered the Salem City hospital for surgical treatment.

TORNADO DEAD BURIED TODAY

Group Burials Made in Some Instances for Sanitation Reasons

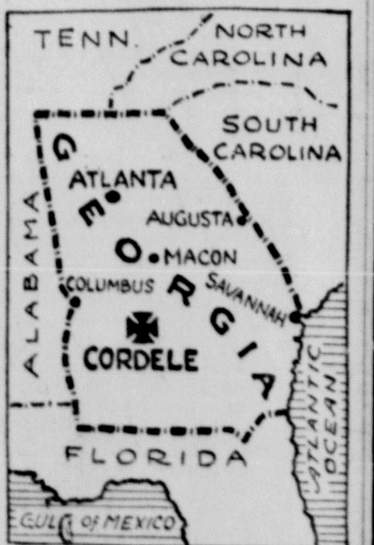

GAINESVILLE, Ga., April 8.—Almost 400 storm dead of Gainesville and Tupelo, Miss., went to hastily dug graves today, in some instances in group burials for sanitation reasons.

Across a half dozen southern states, but avoiding these two towns for the time being, slugsly rising streams sent yellow floods over hundreds of thousands of acres of land and brought a fresh menace to life and property.

The total dead from storm and flood this week stood at 426, with the latest count at Tupelo, 195 and at Gainesville, 185.

Residents rendered destitute in the whirling blasts of tornadoes lasting only a few minutes but causing damage it will take years to erase, were cheered by word that President Roosevelt had allocated $2,500,000 for rehabilitation through the WPA.

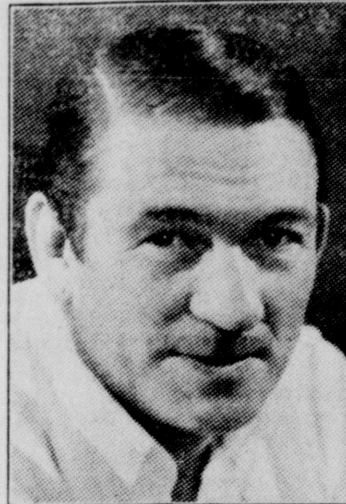

Gale-Torn Town

Death and destruction followed in the wake of a cyclone which raked Cordele, Ga. (marked with cross). Buildings were demolished and roofs torn off by the fury of the wind.

Theater Attractions

For his performance as the dumb Irish brute in the picture, "The Informer," Victor McLaglen won the 1935 award for the best performance of the year from the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences. He received this honor last month and now the State theater brings us a return engagement of this excellent film, showing Thursday only. Many critics write that McLaglen's characterization of Gypo, the derelict, is one of the greatest pieces of acting ever recorded on the screen.

Victor McLaglen, star of "The Informer" to be shown at the State Thursday only. For his performance in this film McLaglen won the 1935 academy award.

Story in Ireland
The story is laid in Dublin, Ireland, during the troubled times following the World war. McLaglen as Gypo, a beast of a man, giant with bone and muscle, but completely devoid of any brain, understands only one thing, the love he has for a blonde girl of the Dublin streets. For money enough to buy this woman, played by Margot Graham, the pretty things she wants, Gypo betrays a friend, fellow revolutionist, portrayed by Wallace Ford. This act is considered by the other fellow conspirators as most despicable and they set out in a body to find the betrayer.

Gypo Is Caught
With twenty pounds reward in his pocket, and the revolutionists in search of him, Gypo is caught in a net of his own making as he drinks to forget the horror of his act. All the story transpires in one night, with Gypo blundering through the foggy night, drinking, fighting, boasting and finally giving himself away as the "informer."

A romance between Heather Angel and Preston Foster softens the brutality of the picture and affords a sharp contrast to the love between McLaglen and Miss Graham. Others in the cast include Neil Fitzgerald, J. M. Kerrigan and Charles Chan at the Circus, with Warner Oland again in the role of the Oriental detective, will be shown at the State tonight for the last time.

Wisconsin Voters Favor Roosevelt By 2 to 1 Margin

(By Associated Press)
MILWAUKEE, April 8.—Wisconsin voters registered a two-to-one preference for President Franklin D. Roosevelt over Senator William E. Borah, aspirant for the Republican nomination, in incomplete returns today from yesterday's primary election.

The Idaho senator was given overwhelming control of the Wisconsin delegation of 24 votes at the Republican national convention, rolling up an impressive lead over a slate of untried delegates.

Voters Flood Polls
Thousands of voters who apparently paid little attention to the convention delegates contests turned out to give their endorsement to Roosevelt.

Candidates pledged to the President took control of the 24 national convention seats—same number as the Republicans—but ran far behind Roosevelt in the balloting.

In the preference primary, an advisory procedure independent of the delegate election, 1831 precincts out of the state's 2,918 gave—Roosevelt 234,776; Borah 104,494.

In a close contest, Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, Milwaukee's socialist executive, was returned to office, defeating Sheriff Joseph H. Shinnors, nonpartisan.

Returns from 373 out of 397 precincts gave Hoan 103,100; Shinnors 90,548.

Killed By Auto

NEW PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Isaac Kail, 84, of Newport, was killed by an automobile as he walked on Route 8 near here last night.

NORWALK.—When it comes to looks, the Shadles have it at Mount Union college in Alliance. Harry Shadle of Norwalk was chosen most handsome man on the campus for the second straight year. His predecessor was his brother, Austin, who held the title three years in succession.

Charm

for Every Hour of the Day

TO BE as smartly groomed at nine in the morning as she is at six in the evening; to be as charming in appearance during the business hours as she is at a dance... isn't that every woman's desire?

WARK'S know that it is and that is why more and more women are calling on us to help them maintain that well-groomed appearance. Trimly tailored suits and smart dark dresses must be as fresh as sparkling evening gowns.

AND every woman knows that we pride ourselves on Quality Work done reasonably.

PLAN NOW to store your Furs in our cold storage and play safe. Fully covered by insurance.
